NEW HAMPSHIRE'S PRIDE. HORACE GREELEY'S RECEPTION

IN THE GRANITE STATE. The Mountains Echoing Welcomes to the Next President-The Immense Concourse in Concord-The Entire State Alive with Enthusiasm Another Speech. Concord, Aug. 8.—Dr. Horace Greeley left Manchester at 10 o'clock this morning. He was driven to the depot in an open barouche drawn by four horses. Ex-Gov. Weston, the Hon. Albert Jackson, and Dr. A. F. Perry accompanied him. A band of music led the procession, the rear being brought up by several carriages and many citizens on foot. As the train left the depot the band struck up "Hail Columbia." The crowd gave three cheers, ladies waved their handkerchiefs, and regrets were generally expressed that the next President could not remain longer in Manchester. On the train a delegation of gentlemen from was driven to the depot in an open barouche waved their handkerchiefs, and regrets were generally expressed that the next President could not remain longer in Manchester. On the train a delegation of gentlemen from Nashua waited on Dr. Greeley, and in-formed him that they had been selected by their fellow citizens to accompany him to Concord, the capital of his native State. where festive honors and a public reception awaited him. They were graciously received by Dr. Greeley and the committee from Manchester, who accompanied the party on the route. When the news spread through the train that Dr. Greeley was one of the passengers a large White Mountains entered the car where he was and shook hands with the next President. Among them were Milton H. Hardy, Samuel Sinclair, Jr., and Sarony, the artist, of New York RNTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION IN CONCORD.

At 11 o'clock, amid the firing of a national salute and the strains of patriotic music, the train arrived at Concord. Cheers rent the air as Dr. Greeley stepped from the train, leaning on the arm of ex-Governor Weston. The illustrious sage of Chappaqua was received at the depot by Mayor Kimbail, Aldermen Curtiss, Child, and Abbott, Grand Marshal J. B. Samborn, the Hon. Mason W. Taupan, the Hon. Mason W. Taupan, the Hon. Menel, E. A. Hibbard, Col. H. D. Kent, and numerous other prominent citizens. Carriages were in waiting for the Presidential party. A procession was formed, and the cortege passed through the brincipal streets. The sidewaks were lined with speciators, who cheered justily whenever the old white hat and coat were visible. Greeley and Brown banners were stretched across several of the streets. Many of the houses were hand complimentary notices of the next President. After a drive of about fifteen minutes the State House was reached. The party alighted from their carriages, and entered the rotunda.

The Hon. Mason W. Tappan made the welcoming speech, to which Mr. Greeley responded as follows:

DR. GREELEY'S SPEECH.

MY FRIEND TAPPAN AND MY FRIENDS AND FELLOW CITIZERS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE: More than half a century has passed since I left this, my native State, in quest of fortune and larger opportunities clsew here. Those years, as you know, have been full of incident. Time rushes, events hurry each other in our day, and one who lives half a century in this age lives longer than a whole century of the life of Methusalch.

Well, feilow citizens, the half century which is passed since I ceased to be a resident of New Hampshire has seen the origin and growth of railroads, telegraphs, and the cables across the ocean; it has seen the rise and fall of empires and dynasties; it has seen, best of all to me, the overthrow and the destruction of American slavery. (Loud applause.) A great thinker has said that to-day is a great thing in disguise—that a day always looks common and trivial to the thoughtless—but all great and noble successes are made up of to-days. I do not know how well men have done, nor how many have done better in this age, but would that I might feel that I have added to the history of the last half century. I believe that our country is better worth living in to-day, with better opportunities for its humblest citizen, because of the events of the last half century. In these events I have borne a humble part—often mistaken, often shortsighted, while doing the thing which seemed not always what was in the wisest and largest view right; but still I think my life has led me to exercise a larger charity toward the great majority of the human face. I believe that the great majority of the human face.

I have always wished in my busy life to come back to the State of my birth, always hoped to have some opportunity to return not expecting ever again to live with its people, but to commune with them, and I trust that the few days which I will spend among you and with my friend will be among the richest and happiest days of my life. I hope that hereafter, as well as now, that in a life which draws toward its close, and which ought to be devoted to rest. I shall have frequent opportunities, not many years hence, to come to New Hampshire, to mingle with its people and rejoice with them that the old State bears so pround a position among her sister States, that her half million of sons and daughters now residents of other States always look back with fond a growth of the state of visitors and the list of visitors.

So then, friends, in the trust that I shall have So then, friends, in the trust that I shall have opportunities hereafter to mingle more familiarly with you, and that those differences which have separated us in the past will gradually fade away in the light of new events, new circumstances, and we shall come to know each other better and appreciate each other more thoroughly, in that faith and hope I now take my leave of you. [Loud and prolonged cheering.]

Dr. Greeley was then escorted to the Phoenix Hotel, where he dined and afterward held a reception, which was largely attended. At 4 P. M. he started for Bradford, where he will be the guest of the Hod. Mason W. Tappan.

At West Concord Contoccookville, and Warner crowds assembled to greet the candidate for the Presidency. At the two latter places salutes were fired, and Mr. Greeley left the car to shake hands with the people. Arriving at Bradford, he was met at the depot by a large concourse people, who escorted him to the Presby House, where rooms had been engaged for him. The procession was headed by a brass band. A reception took place on the plazza of the hotel, and Mr. Greeley made a brief speech.

It is understood that Mr. Greeley will remain here until Monday next, when he will go to the White Mountains. White Mountains.

Vermont to place at the head of the ticket a Liberal Republican instead of a Democrat, of course the question of candidates, so far as I was concerned, was settled. The more I reflect upon the matter, the more I am inclined to believe that the Convention acted wisely in nominating for Governor one who has always been a prominent member of the Republicau party, and who now supports Mr. Greeley, believing that that profound statesman represents the sentiments of the beat classes of the American people. I cheerfully approve the nominations, and take pride in the fact that our able and distinguished townsman, Mr. Gardner, heads the ticket. You may be sure I shall do all in my power for his election and for the advancement of the good cause generally. I have the honor, to be, sir, to read the following extract from the call for the Convention:

We have full faith in him [Grant] as a penceful man, because had he felt disposed to exercise his power as a personal governor, he would have done it while nearly a milion of men were harms and under his command, instead of siding, as he did, the rapid reduction of the army to a peace footing.

It will be noticed that Gen. Chamberlain strongly objects even to hinting at Grant's usurping kingly power.

GOV. CHAMBERLAIN'S EMPHATIC DENIAL.

BRUNSWICK, Me., July 25.

DRAM GENERAL: I have yours of to-day inquiring as to my signature upon the call for a convention of soldiers and sailors of the late war, to be held in Pittsburgh, with a view to affect the political canvass now pending. You are quite right in assuming that I did not authorize the use of my name. Besides disapproving in samption under which my name was appended to the call.

Your letter, however, proceeds on other grounds, and involves issues in which I be not propose to take part. While I heartily desire reform in politics I see nothing in the situation which inclines me to take any public position, and there are many reasons why I should not, you will not be surprised, therefore, that I come my answer to the direct point of your inquiry, and reserve the discussion of political issues until I see it to be a matter of service or duty toward the people who have honored me with their confidence.

I am, General, very truly your friend and servant.

Major-Gen. J. Kilpatrick.

If Gen. Chamberlain's signature is a forgery, as it is proven to be, the question arises. How many more of the signatures are fulse?

THE COLORED MEN AWAKING.

Many colored men called at the Glenham yesterday, expecting to meet and congratulate Mr.

W. U. Saunders, the eloquent colored orator from Baltimore, who rendered such efficient service in the late campaign in North Carolina, and to assure him of the success which awaited him in the discussion with the liev. Henry Highland Garnet, which was set down for to-night at Cooper Institute. Mr. Saunders not appearing, the visitors supplied themselves with campaign documents and went away.

THE NATIONAL DEMOGRATIC COMMITTEE.

During the afternoon Mr. W. U. Saunders and Mr. Walter Sorrell of Baltimore, and Mr. George W. Hatton of Washington, visited the rooms. They are colored men of fine appearance and great intelligence. All three did good service for the reform movement in the late campaign in North Carolina.

THE FRAUDS IN NORTH CAROLINA. THE FRAUS IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Mr. Sorrell expressed himself energetically in regard to the election, and said that only the most outrageous fraud cauld count Caldwell into the gibernatorial chair. He says that the stories told of imported voters are true; that hundreds of colored men were imported from neighboring States, taken to the polls, and their votes cast for the Grant party. Of the prospect in Maryland Mr. Sorrell entertained no doubt; the State would go overwhelmingly for Greeley.

The announcement in the newspapers that Mr. Saunders and the flev. Henry Highland Garnet would discuss the questions of the day in Cooper Institute to-night, had excited great interest among all classes.

Mr. Saunders is a very energetic and accomplished speaker. The flev. Mr. Garnet is well known as one of the most eloquent of New York's colored preachers, and a lively discussion was anticipated. It now seems as though it would not take place. Mr. Garnet made his reply conditional on ability to hire the hall.

reply conditional on ability to hire the hall.

A GRANT MAN BACKING DOWN.

The three gentlemen yesterday met Mr. Garnet in the Fifth Avenue Hotel at the Grant headquarters, and they were there informed by Mr. Garnett that the hail could not be procured before Monday or Tuesday night. Mr. Saunders thereupon procured the services of a New York friend, Mr. S. R. Scottron, of Richmond & Scottron, mirror manufacturers, 177 Canal street, Mr. Scottron went to Cooper Institute to ascertain whether the hall could be engaged for tonight. The result of his investigation he submits in writing:

that it can be procured for your proposed debate tomorrow evening, Aug. 9.
Yours truly.
S. R. Scottron.

As Mr. Saunders's engagements require him to leave New York to-morrow, he feels much annoyed. He does not impute knowing wrong to Mr. Garnett, but thinks his proceeding very strange. Should Mr. Garnett decide to meet him on Monday or Tuesday it is possible that Mr. Saunders would remain until then, though the prefers to meet the gentieman to-night. It is not impossible that the meeting will yet take prefers to meet the gentieman does not impossible that the meeting will yet take diace to-night, for it cannot be that a gentieman of Mr. Garnett's reputation would back out of an agreement fairly made.

The most overwhelming evidence of wholesale frauds in the election is coming in. In many counties it is known that 100 or 200 negroes voted fraudulently. If Caldwell's majority does not exceed 1,500 the Liberal ticket will contest the election. Letters from leading men in the State have already been received urging Judge Merrimon and his associates to take steps for contesting it before the proper tribunal. When those definite results have been reached I will telegraph you.

Speech of Spotted Tail at the Bible House

Yesterday.

I understand that this is a good house. I see some good people here. We are a truthful people and endeavorto do right to all men. I think you have met for good and I hope I am not mistaken. We would be hapy if you will only teach us. The Great Father in Vashington has sent bad people to us. We have had Washington has sent bad people to us. We have had unany liars and thieves sent to us. Our country is getting to be very small; the writes are encroaching upon our grounds so much that health and life see impossible. We want some land to cuttivate. I hope that all you promise will be fulfilled. Speches are good, but deeds are better. Grant said, "Make your own selection and it will be yours." After we task inade, and began to settle upon it, we were to do to move. We have been driven from our homes by every form of cruelty and deception that the arts of civilization could event. We want justice established in our deadings. We want to be regarded as human beings and be provided for as such. We do not want the justice of powder and bayonet. We have long been subject to wrongs tending to our direct externination. In this visit I have met some white men that I think I can trust. Your Great Father has told us some great lies when telling of the benefits that he intended to confer upon us. We want peace. There are many rogues in the employ of the Government. We do not want men coming through our lands surveying it. They are only speculating how they can cheat us. I would like to know the names and addresses of those who purchased lands from these bad men. Grant said he would send us some good people, but we did not see them yet. Thut's ail. He didn't need a second warning, for he saw that the animal had his blazing eyes fixed upon him, and was preparing to make a rush for him. The reporter wheeled about, ran back to Broadway, and dedged around the corner of Harmon's new building. He was just in time, for in a moment the bull came tearing along, but losing sight of the reporter, ran across Broadway and made a rush for some one else in the direction of South Ninth street. The excited crowd of men and boys followed in order to warn those on the streets who were unconscious of the approaching danger. ing danger.

streets who were unconscious of the approaching danger.

A BLIND MAN TOSSED OVER A FENCE.

The bull now slackened his pace and walked quietly down South Ninth street. A boy was leading a blind man down the street in front of the infurtated animal, all unconscious of the approaching danger. Some one shouted to him to cross the street or seek refuge in some one's door yard. He probably did not hear the warning, at least he did not heed it. When the bull came up to him the animal tossed him over the fence and then quietly walked on as if nothing had happened. The man received but slight injury. The animal turned into Sixth street, thence into Division avenue, still followed by an excited crowd. Those in front fled in every direction. The excitement along the streets was intense. The inhabitants rushed to the windows and into the streets after the danger had passed.

Mr. A. H. Dorchester was crossing Division avenue at Clymer street to put his horse in Bennett's livery stable just as the bull came along. The animal made for him and tossed him high into the air. As he fell he struck on the back of his head and was severely injured. Luckily the bull left him and proceeded on his tramp, going down Flith street to South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way down South Eighth. It was rumored that on his way and trunted the South Side Railroad depot he was in a towering rage, caused by the shouts and taunts of the crowd of men and boys who followed in his track. A number of people were standing in front of the building, but they lost no time in seeking a place of safety when they saw the bull madily rushing toward them. Seeing nothing on which to vent his rage the bull walked up to the depot gate and looked through the pickets as if challenging the whole crowd of two legged animals to come out and try his mettle. No one accepting the challeng; the bull went along First street, looking into the ferry box on his way and frightening the gate and Broadway ran into the neighboring stores and saloons at his approach.

The course of the beast was finally challeng stores and saloons at his approach.

THE BULL AT BAY.

The course of the beast was finally checked at the Broadway ferry gates. Mr. E. D. Chanpel. Superintendent of the ferry, was behind the gate when the animal approached. As the buil stood looking him in the eve Mr. Chappel drew a revolver and sent a bail crashing into his head. This was the signal for an indiscriminate use of pistols, most of which were too small to be of any use, and only added to the rage of the beast. The plaza in front of the ferry house was now filled with men and boys forming a semi-circle around the animal, but taking care to stand at a safe distance. When the buil received the pistol shots he turned from the gate and stood facing his tormentors. As he stood there with head erect, his eyes blazing like stars, and the blood streaming from his wounds, he looked the picture of rage. His beligerent attitude seemed to strike the crowd with terror and every one made for a place of safety. They were none too soon, for the maddened buil started almost at the same moment that the crowd turned to flee.

Another narrow escape. THE BULL AT BAY. ANOTHER NARROW ESCAPE.

One man was a little behind and the bull was close to his heels. If he attempted to run up the street he would surely be caught, and perhaps gored to death. Luckily he saw a basement door open and he made for it, reaching it half a length ahead of his pursuer. He slammed the door in the bull's face, while the latter stood on the edge of the steps looking through the glass doors as if in triumph over his imprisoned foe. The field was now clear and the infuriated animal strode across the plaza with the air of a conqueror. Thus far he was master of the situation. As he approached one side of the street the men who had run into the stores on the other side ventured out. The bull would then wheel round and make for them, and in they went again. they went again.

then wheel round and make for them, and in they went again.

DISCRETION THE BETTER PART.

Finally a young, flashily-dressed fellow stepped forth from John Chamberlin's dining saloon, armed with a club about the size of a policeman's billy. Determination was on his brow and the fire of courage blazed from his eyes. The spectators thought he might be some Spanish buil fighter who had slain his hundreds in the bloody arena, and waited breatblessly for the beginning of the contest. The buil at first looked upon the venturesome youth with disdain. Then, seeing that the fellow meant fight, he lowered his head, and with a loud bellow went for the young man like a cannon shot. The daring buil fighter didn't stand on the order of his going, but went at once. He never made better time than he did in getting to the corner of First street. There he dodged behind a telegraph pole, and as he did so the buil's head came crashing against the other side. Just then a horse car approached, and the animal went for bigger game. He attacked the horses, and in some inexplicable manner got between the two. The car was thrown from the track, and the driver attempted to disable the buil by running over him, but the animal cleared himself, and again started toward the ferry gate. He was aimed for George's newstand, behind which George himself was seated. George saw him coming, and just as the animal stuck his hose over the counter George let down his blinds and shut himself in.

A SCNE OF HORROR.

nose over the counter George let down his blinds and shut himself in.

A SCENE OF HORROR.

The bull was again master of the field, and with blazing eyes and streaming wounds he strode around the piaza like a conqueror. At this juncture, Peter McDermott, of 558 Warren street, who had fired up his courage with Williamsburgh gin, boldly staggered out into the street, exclaiming, "Fil fix (hic) 'im; Fil thic) fix; 'I'll thic fix' im.' He had hardly reached the railroad track before the built had him on his horns, and tossed him into the air. Peter fellom the built's back and rolled off on tottke pawbment. The built stood for a moment looking at the prostrate man. If he had remained quiet he would have been unharmed, but as he tried to get up the built crushed him down with his horns, and turned him over as if he had been a hundle of rags. A cry of horror broke from the spectators. For an instant the maddened animal was left to vent his rage, and then a dozen or more brave fellows rushed to the scene armed with revolvers and whatever weapons they could lay their hands on. Among the foremost was Mr. Chappel, who fired a pistod shot into the animal's flanks, which made him stagger. Then an iceman of the Knickertocker Company sprang up with an axe, and with a well-directed blow on the head of the animal felled it to the pavement. After he had failen the iceman buried his axe two or three times in the buil's throat, and John Chamberlin finished the job with a carving knife.

Before this, however, the crowd had fired promiscuously into the prostrate body of the built,

AFTER THE BATTLE.

The bleeding body of the buil lay where it fell for over an hour, and hundred flocked around to look at it. Finally a butcher's truck cleared the field of battle, and to-day the cause of all this commotion will be cut up into steaks and sold in the Dutchtown market at the highest ruling prices.

THE BUFFALO FLYERS.

Three Splendid Races Yesterday - Lady Maud Winning the Colt Ruce-Ten Horses Con-testing for the $10,000 Purse. Buffalo, Aug. 8.—As on the preceding days the attendance was immense. The grand stand, the quarter stretch, and all the surroundings of the park were thronged. The weather was delightful, the refreshing breeze from Lake Erie contributing largely to the comforts of the day. Large sums of money exchanged hands on the different trots, all of which were intensely interesting. Everybody was in excellent humor.

the different trots, all of which were intensely interesting. Everybody was in excellent humor. The music of the Cornet Band and the sweet strains of Arbuckle's instrument were heard between the heats, and added greatly to the pleasure of the afternoon.

The sports of the day began with purse No. 7, $1.500, for five-year-olds and under, for which five celebrated coits not unknown to fame were entered. All appeared. Zilcadie Golddust was the favorite in the pools, Lady Maud second; Vanity Fair, Rowe's Tommy, land Mary Burched in the field. Lady Maud won the race handsomely in three straight heats.

The second race on the card was for the $10,000 purse, for which there were eleven entries. The well-known horse Strideaway having been withdrawn, ten horses came to the scratch. The bay mare Gizzelle and Lucille Golddust had the call against the field. Kilburn Jim won the first heat and became the favorite, and remained such, winning the following two heats and race.

The wind-up race of the day was a purse of $2,000, for horses that never trotted better than 2.50. Sensation was the universal favorite, and won the two first heats. Great dissatisfaction was amanifosted by the crowd at the manner in which Grace was handled by her driver. The judges then selected Mr. John Murphy as a substitute, and he was received with cheers as he mounted the sulky. Notwithstanding this, Sensation won the third heat and race.

Imposing Obsequies of President Juarez— The Capital Draped in Mourning-Gen-eral Amnesty Decreed. CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 1.—The funeral of Juarez was an imposing spectacle. The corpse was interred in the Pantheon. The streets and houses were draped with mourning, and the procession bore numberiess emblems of gricf. procession bore numberless emblems of grief.

Fully seventy thousand spectators lined the streets through which it passed. Nearly all the foreigners in the capital were present at the ceremonies, as were all the public officers and foreign diplomats. Addresses were made by Minister Nelson on behalf of the diplomatic corps, and Señor Vigil for the editorial fraternity of Mexico. The death of Junez is generally regretted.

During the passing of the funeral procession through the Calle Plateras, one of the cannon fired at the Plater a woman and wounded through the Calle Plateras, one of the cannon fired at the Palace killed a woman and wounded a man.

Angel Yturbide, a son of the Ex-Euperor, died at the capital on the same day as Juarez. He leaves a widow and one son.

There was a revolution in Tampico on receipt of news of the death of Juarez. The Guerrero insurgents shout: "Hurrah for Diaz, and death to Lerdo." There were no other disturbances, either in the capital or elsewhere, upon the announcement of the death of Juarez.

It is reported that Gen. Diaz has decided to go to San Francisco in consequence of receiving no aid from the people of Tepec.

Congress will meet in extra session on the 15th of September. Various names are mentioned for the new Catinet, but there is as yet nothing certain as to its composition. Lerdo is a candidate for election to the Presidency, and the names of several others are mentioned as competitors.

President Lerdo has issued a decree of general amnesty to political prisoners, the only exceptions being the Lieutenant-Generals under the Empire of Maximilian. Lerdo nas voluntarily ordered an investigation into the outrages committed on American citizens in Chiapas.

The journals report that Lerdo will recall Senor Wariscal from Washington. It is believed the revolutionists will disband when informed of the policy of the Administration.

THE GREAT CAMP MEETING.

The Most Comfortable of all the Camp Grounds-The Good Work Progressing-Policemen Converted. Yesterday the Methodist camp meeting in Sing Sing was well attended. The day was sultry. The camp ground is comfortably covered with tents, many of which are elegantly furnished. A number of the fraternity antici pated the meeting by several weeks, and conse quently avoided the bustle and excitement of getting ready just before the meeting. They have preaching three times a day, with a children's meeting at midday. When there is children's meeting at midday. When there is no preaching at the grand stand, the more venerable laymen and laywomen begin an exhortation in the prayer tents, and soon attract a crowd. This is where the Methodists gain their strength. Embryo converts are made here. The candidates for conversion are nominated in these prayer tents. Yesterday afternoon the services began at 2:30, and lasted until 5, the worshippers sang and prayed and preached, and preached and prayed and sang until they became utterly exhausted.

The camp meeting is presided over by the Rev. Dr. Stephen D. Brown of the New York Conference. Sergeant Wm. Lefferts and six patrollmen from the sanitary squad in New York Conference. Sergeant wm. Lefferts and six patrollmen from the sanitary squad in New York are on the ground to keep order. The arrangements for accommodation of visitors are complete. There are two large boarding tents. Mr. H. Church, police officer of Sing Sing, has the largest and most commodious. Grocery, furniture, stationery, soda water, barber, meat, and bakers' tents are all together in a little village with numbered streets near the carriage entrance.

Sing prison, Sheriff Bundage of Westchester county, the Hon. E. G. Sutherland of White Plains, and a number of others.
Last night the policemen had prayer meeting in their tent. Patrolman Stephen Johns lead off in a fervent prayer, and the rest followed. Mr.
Johns has become an ardent Methodist, and has sent for his wife. It is safe to estimate that three fourths of the 2,000 visitors yesterday were sent for his wife. It is safe to estimate that three-fourths of the 2,000 visitors yesterday were Methodists. The absence of the moustache on the men, and the modest dress of the women are generally a true index of their religion. The class above alinded to greatly predominated yesterday.

At high the camp presents an animated appearance. All the tents are lighted with lamps. The streets or walks are brilliantly illuminated.

Attempting to Kill a Wife. At five o'clock yesterday morning, James Cal laghan, a hotel waiter, and his wife Margaret of Si East Eleventh street, quarrelled. Callaghan inflicted seven serious wounds with a hatchet upon his spouse's head, after which he fied, and has so far cluded the vigilance of the police. Mrs. Callaghan remained stunned for some time.

Dunn is said to be worth $50,000, all of which he acquired by his nefarious calling. The police say that they have him in a tight place and that his chances for Sing Sing are first-class.

Was Dr. Knight Polsoned?

Was Dr. Knight Folsoned?
The funeral of Dr. Knight of Metuchen, N. J. is to take place at St. Luke's Church to-day, under the auspices of Union Lodge No. 19, F. and A. M. It was said when the death was first reported on Tuesday, that said when the death was first reported on Tuesday, that the doctor died of choiera morbus, but rumors of four play have arisen since then. It is said that an old lady called on the doctor and asked him to analyze some wine which she believed had been poisoned. After tasting it and pronouncing it good he drank a glass of it, but shortly afterward was attacked with severy cramps and vomited profusely. He took an emetic and recovered, but was attacked by the same complaint about two weeks afterward and died.

Suspicion points to the young son-in-law of the old lady, who owned the wine, and it is thought by some that he is the poisoner.

Another version of the atlair is that Dr. Knight called on the wife of this young man, and that she called his attention to the wine, and he drank of it and afterward experienced symptoms of poisoning.

The profuse of the control of the said of the wine and was poisoned by it. His brothers who are physicians in New York, intend to make a post mortem examination to-day. Dr. Pearson, who attended the doctor, says his patient died of gastric iever.

A West Side Barroom Tragedy. Yesterday Coroner Young investigated the case of Richard Coleman, who was shot on the morning of Aug. 4 by Charles Regan, at 551 West Forty-second William Johnson, of 506 West Forty-third street, whe was with Coleman when he was shot, testified that Coleman was very drunk and abusive, and wanted to whip Regan, who advised him to go home, and gave him a drink to pacify him. Wilness saw Coleman catch Regan around the neck, and stab him over the eye. Regan ran into the back room, whither he was followed by Coleman. While in the back room witness heard the report of a pistol, and afterward heard that Coleman and been shot. Coleman was a tall, heavy man. Regan is a slim man. Saw the knife, and saw Coleman stab Regan before he heard the report of a pistol. Heard Coleman threaten to whip Regan.

The testimony of Johnson was corroborated by that of Henry McGrath, Regan's barkeeper, and by Mary Regan, a sister of the prisoner. The jury returned a critical that Regan acted purely in self-defence, and Coroner Young discharged the prisoner from custody.
